

OLIVER JOHN'S

THE ADVENTURES OF BONGO

Once upon a time,
there was a deep
and dense forest,
there lived a little
bear named Bongo. Bongo was a curious and
adventurous bear
who loved exploring the woods around his home

*One day, when he was out on his usual
adventure, he stumbled
upon a sparkling blue
lake.*

Bongo had never seen a lake before
and was fascinated by the way the sunlight
danced across the surface of the water. He decided to take a closer look and went to the shallow end of the lake.

Suddenly, he heard a noise and turned around to see a large, scary creature rushing towards him! It was a big elephant, and it didn't seem happy to see Bongo.

But Bongo was a brave little bear, and he knew just what to do. He climbed up a nearby tree and watched as the big elephant snorted and stomped around the lake, looking for him.

After a while, the big elephant gave up
and wandered off
into the forest.

Bongo was safe, but he was also feeling a little bit scared. He realized that sometimes, even the
bravest of bears
needed to be careful.

As he climbed down from the tree, Bongo
promised himself that he would always remember
to be cautious
and aware of his surroundings.

And with that, he
adventure, eager
to see what other
surprises the forest
had in store for him.
